$\mathrm{B} /$ from its reflection under the crack
$\mathrm{C} /$ on the stone staircase outside
2. When Henry Adams was here during the American Civil War he wrote a discerning though rather gloomy analysis of Britain's problems for the benefit of his prophetic brother, Brooks Adams. At the height of the mid-Victorian prosperity he declared that the English economy was based on the most fragile foundations and $\qquad$ in economic unity between Britain and her wideflung possessions beyond the seas.
A/ that the blissful continuation was
B/ little could be done with no progress
C / that the remedy for this evil lay
$\mathrm{D} /$ it was by far pointless placing hope
3. Andersson walked across the courtyard to the gateway where he clocked in and out. The porter was unwilling to open the gate. "Sick," young Andersson said, "sick." his pallor, his habitual slight stoop, the new worry which sat his face uneasily like a recruit at a riding-school, were his bona fides. The gate of the factory was opened for him. A/ It was unnecessary to act sickness, B/ But the porter hardly looked; C/ Undeniably, his condition worsened,

D/ 'Aye, aye, mate. Don't you rush,'
4. The organization of the groups was rather like an octopus: there was a small centre with very long 'legs', i.e. chains of contacts, leading to it, which meant that members in the regions never knew who the central controllers were. They simply received instructions by letter or dropped message. If they were caught, they could not implicate anyone else. $\ldots$ _ a strictly need-to-know basis. There was the constant fear of detection, however, and one region would invariably distrust another. Suspicion was unbelievably intense.

A/ That appeared well justified on
C/ Security was thus assured with

B/ The principle since long known as D/ Information was given out on
5. The rain had stopped, an east wind drove the clouds in grey flocks above Lake Mallon, and darts of sunlight flicked the wet stones of the palace, the opera house, the House of Parliament. I was hungry and thirsty but felt strangely resolute. Good fortune already had buoyed up my threatened lot; there seemed little reason to expect greater dangers than those I had already surmounted. I took out my compass, checked it against the North Star and then began to trudge carefully up the coast in the general direction of Sukhumi.
It was a difficult walk. Trundling 1/ $\qquad$ and under rail and wire 2/ $\qquad$ and making my $3 /$ $\qquad$ through the tangle of occasional tea plantations, I did my best to avoid 4/__u $\qquad$ , going far out 5/ $\qquad$ my way to skirt 6/ $\qquad$ as I discerned their 7/__a $\qquad$ in the sequined predawn grayness. Whenever dogs 8/ $\qquad$ I lay motionless on the soft, grassy loam. At last, working inland in gingerly 9/_ _S $\qquad$ I came to a dirt 10/ $\qquad$ and decided to sit there, waiting for sunrise and destiny.

11/__e $\qquad$ soon a battered truck came 12/__u $\qquad$ up the ruts and the driver stopped for me. He was an 13/ $\qquad$ handsome young Russian, far more 14/__v $\qquad$ with his own 15/__p $\qquad$ than with his unexpected
16/ $\qquad$ . In the almost springless vehicle, $17 / \ldots \mathrm{m}$ $\qquad$ , shaking, swaying along the uneven road, he kept glancing into the rear-view mirror and taking a comb from his breast 18/ $\qquad$ , straightening his long, curly locks and rearranging them along his 19/ $\qquad$ _.

23/ $\qquad$ the morning blossomed, we passed 24/ $\qquad$ the ruins of an old bridge, then the $25 / \ldots m$ $\qquad$ of an ancient fortification, and finally headed $26 /$ the trading quarter and down to the waterfront 27/ $\qquad$ and ramshackle sheds 28/ $\qquad$ , I suppose, his equipment
29/ $\qquad$ him. I did not ask. He let me off near one of the piers and I walked away through a sentimental little garden of palm trees and rose 30/__s s $\qquad$ , not yet in bloom.
Already the municipal loudspeakers blared. I noticed that few people were moving; instead they stood riveted, listening with keen attention, an expression of shock on their gaping faces. The radio was saying, first in Russian, then in Georgian, that Comrade J. V. Stalin had suffered a brain hemorrhage Sunday night and since then had never regained consciousness. It was Tuesday, March 4.
